Minnie, 35-Year-Old Trick Mare, Dies at Farm Near Brush Ridge

By EDNA S. DUTTON

Minnie is dead. The little roan mare that knew a lot of tricks and enjoyed doing them, worked hard when there was work to be done and mothered everything from baby calves to little pigs, died Sunday at the home of her first master, Charles T. Bryant of northeast of Brush Ridge at the ripe old age of 35 years. And if there is a heaven for horses, Mr. Bryant is sure she is there for "she was a good horse."

Minnie's early years and her life since 1931 were pretty nice for those were the days she spent with Mr. Bryant. Life from 1932 when Mr. Bryant sold her until 1931 when he got her back may not have been so glorious for she was in the hands of horse traders for the most part and Mr. Bryant doesn't know just exactly how she fared.

Born in 1905

Minnie was foaled in 1905 and Mr. Bryant broke her in 1908. Young, little and keen, Minnie was trained by her master for a trick mare. It didn't take her long to learn to get down on her knees and bid her master the time of day, and in her early days she would put her front feet on his shoulders and walk around the barnyard.

It was one of the happiest days of Mr. Bryant's life when he came across Minnie in 1931 while on a horse-buying trip. He bought her back from John Weaver of Kenton, for $10 and the owner threw in a quarter of beef for good measure. When Mr. Bryant sold her to Ralph Johnson nearly 20 years before she brought $125. Minnie's halcyon days began then; for Mr. Bryant knew he was going to keep her till she died.

"I don't know whether she knew me or not when I bought her back, but it didn't take her long to do her tricks when I called them," he said in telling of her death.

Minnie was used for driving and worked mostly as a pinch hitter the last years of her life. And when you hitched her up she worked as hard and did as much work as any other horse on the farm, her owner said. Most of her time, however, was spent on pasture.

Had Her Moments

Minnie had pride, too. She carried herself well when hitched to a buggy, and in 1910, when President Harding was a candidate for governor of the state she had a place in a parade, staged by Marion residents.

In recent months Minnie's legs weren't so good, and she couldn't eat so well so she was humanely sent to that haven, when oats grows as sweet as sugar plums and pastures are always green.

When Mr. Bryant became the owner of Minnie in 1931 The Star carried a story on the purchase and he has received numerous inquiries regarding her since that time.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Don't Delay Vaccination.

THACKERY, in "Henry Esmond," that novel the scene of which is laid in eighteenth century England, describes in one chapter the chill fear that creeps over a household when it is rumored that there is smallpox in a nearby village. The fear is all the more panicky in that everyone feels so helpless. There is nothing to do to prevent the incursion of the plague; wandering tradesmen coming to the door of the house may spread it; a servant who goes into town may come back and give the disease to the entire household. The only protection was in having had a previous attack.

If we try to protect ourselves in that frame of mind, we will be in a position to thank heaven that we have today a safe and sure way of preventing smallpox. Instead of complaining about the trouble of vaccination, or putting off the day when it should be done, one day of experience like that in the eighteenth century would make us want to rush pell-mell and have all the children vaccinated at once.

Because if you hear today that smallpox has broken out in the next village, you just shrug your shoulders and see to it that everyone in your household is vaccinated right away.

The age at which smallpox vaccination should be done is very young. One series of cases has been reported when it was done on the first day of life. Six months is conservatively considered the proper time. The young patients stand it better than when they are older. The multiple puncture method now used is hardly troublesome enough to require the use of a dressing.

Her scrutiny lasted but the merest fraction of a second. Then she rose abruptly, and walking over to me, tapped me lightly on the shoulder.

"Promise me you'll stay put for two minutes," she said. "I won't be longer than that."

A Delegation of Two

"Cross my heart; hope to die; honest injun!" I returned, forcing a wintry smile to my lips, for indeed, I asked nothing more of life at that moment than the opportunity to sit motionless with my mind a blank. I could not even summon energy enough to wonder where she had gone, or why she had made so sudden a departure.

She was back in the time she had named, and she did not come alone. Lillian was beside her, and the sight of my two friends together and with something purposeful in their faces, shattered my lethargy and excited my curiosity.

That they were in the room because of me was obvious, but a glance at Katherine's hands told me that she had brought no portion of any kind with her, and I knew that she was not worrying over my physical condition. Her first words, however, told me that she and Lillian were turning themselves into a First Aid unit for the appeasement of my mental worries, realizing that it was my spirit, not my body which needed succor.

TIDINGS OF TROUBLE FROM FILM CAPITAL

Hedy LaMarr, Others Head for Divorce Court.

By The Associated Press
HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—Anti-marital tidings from the film colony.

Beauteous, black-haired Hedy LaMarr is suing writer-producer Gene Markey for divorce. The veteran thespian-ironicist, John Barrymore, and his young wife, Elaine Barrie, have "busted up" again. Blonde Carole Landis has left her wealthy, socially-connected yacht broker husband, Willis Hunt, planning an early divorce suit.

In her brief complaint, Miss LaMarr charged she had been subjected to "grievous mental and physical suffering" but omitted details.

Miss LaMarr and Markey, former husband of actress Joan Bennett, married at Mexicali, Mexico, March 4, 1939. They met soon after she came to Hollywood and divorced Fritz Mandl, Austrian munitions maker. Barrymore, the rabble-riiser, pungent "old man river" of the stage and screen, declared he and his 26-year-old fourth wife are separated permanently this time. In previous rows, she has started and then dropped two divorce suits and he has abandoned actions against her and her mother, one involving his money.

Married only 2 1/2 months ago, Miss Landis told friends she was leaving Hunt living at her home while she went into seclusion. Her attorney, Gregson Bautzer, said she planned to file a divorce suit within a few days, making a general charge of cruelty.

News Behind the News

No Enthusiasm for Roosevelt Noted Along
His Route Through South.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The south must have seemed a little dry politically to Mr. Roosevelt. To one traveling with him, it certainly looked like a fire hazard to the third term Maypole Mr. Willkie cannot ignite it, but certainly Mr. Roosevelt left no flames rising on the horizon behind him when he returned from his mountain-circuit riding, torch still in hand.

Paul Mallon

In two days of travel Mr. Roosevelt waved to more than 150,000 adults of voting age, per haps many more. No record was kept of how many waved back. The news- men riding 10 motor cars behind encountered some minor booging that was obviously not intended for the press cars which were unidentified. A few home-made "Vote for Willkie" signs could be read without glasses along the line. Similar sentiments were vocally expressed. But these manifestations were not in sufficient volume to raise them above the classification of political trivia.

Certainly not trivial to even a casual observer, however, was the obvious lack of enthusiasm, flag waving and lustiness commonly associated with parades of presidential candidates. (The Knoxville reception was the single exception.) Applause there was aplenty and considerable waving of hands, but no hat tossing, few signs.

The campaigning system Mr. Roosevelt is using may be partly responsible. His non-political style of vote getting by the dam-dedicating defense-inspecting method is so casual that people could not be blamed for taking it casually.

Boon

Through the Tennessee valley district most of the local political authorities encountered agreed Mr. Roosevelt should carry their region. The boon of TVA and the prevalence of organized labor in textiles and new industries would turn the trick, according to apparently prevailing local opinion. The same was said of Charleston, (like Knoxville a normally Republican community which is booming with government and private industry, and will boom more when the navy spends $20,000,000 already appropriated for its arsenal there.) Also the United Mine Workers are politically powerful in West Virginia. John Lewis to the anti-Roosevelt contrary, notwithstanding.

Thus Mr. Roosevelt chose to initiate his non-political vote getting campaign in districts of the south most favored with govern- ment contributions and most favorable politically as unique strongholds of organized labor. Nowhere else in the south does such situation prevail. If it is dry, the rest must be tinder.

Reports that it is came to the presidential train from people interviewed from Virginia, Georgia and Alabama. In Virginia, for instance, about the only organized labor following politically important is in the railroad brother- hoods, and they are all ener- getically working for Roosevelt. Beyond that group apathy and some bitterness. There appeared to be much talk against a third term for anyone. "Trying to make him- self a dictator," "I'll not vote for Willkie, but I won't vote for any- one for a third term," etc.

Mild

Democratic organization leaders such as governors, senators, repre- sentatives, are for Roosevelt, but most mildly. Some of the private explanations of the representa- tives are that they have to be because their state election law are such that they will lose their whole state organization if they cut the head of the ticket. Ob- viously they have little heart for the business. But the drop from that elevated strata to the next lower layer of probable Roose- velt votes involves a sheer decline as steep as the great Smoky Mountains and less enjoyable from the third term standpoint. Before you hit the bottom you run into the class that cannot afford to, or does not desire to pay a poll tax, for the privilege of voting.

Leveling off this and other evi- dence for generalized conclusion I do not believe Roosevelt's voting-draw today is anything near 70 to 80 per cent in southern states as the Gallup poll contends.

I think Willkie has a good chance to win a few southern states where ticket-splitting is feasible and where the ranks of organized labor are thin.

As a whole, within the limited observation afforded me, the south appeared likely Roosevelt territory that is today politically confused, hesitant and wholly unenthusiastic, is one word "com- bustible."

Today and Tomorrow

What Is the Monroe Doctrine? Lippmann Gives a Little History Lesson.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN CONNECTION with the pres- ent agreement, it may be use- ful to remind ourselves once more that from the beginning the policy of defending the western hemis- phere has rested upon under- standings between Great Britain and the United States. This was the fact in the case of the Louisiana Purchase and it was the fact in the case of the an- nouncement of the Monroe Doc- trine.

Here, for example, is an ac- count of the circumstances which led to the Monroe Doctrine, an account by Calhoun in a speech delivered twenty-five years after Monroe, Jefferson, Madison, and Adams had made their momen- tous decision to defend the in- dependence of the western hemis- phere. Calhoun's speech was de- livered in 1848, shortly after the overthrow of the despotic govern- ments at whose aggressive designs the Monroe Doctrine was di- rected.

"The Allied powers were the four great con- tinental monarchies—Russia, Prussia, Austria, and France."

Shortly after the overthrow of Bonapart these powers entered into an alliance called the Holy Alliance, the object of which was to sustain and extend the mon- archical principles as far as pos- sible, and to oppress and put down popular institutions. Eng- land, in the early stages of the alliance, favored it. The mem- bers of the alliance held several congresses, attended either by themselves or their ambassadors, and undertook to regulate the af- fairs of all Europe, and actually interfered in the affairs of Spain for the purpose of putting down popular doctrines.

"In its progress the alliance turned its eyes to this continent in order to aid Spain in regain- ing her sovereignty over her revoluted provinces. At this stage England became alarmed. Mr. Canning was then prime minister. He informed Mr. Rush (the Amer- ican minister in London) of the project, and gave to him at the same time the assurance that, if sustained by the United States, Great Britain would resist. Mr. Rush immediately communicated this to our government. It was received here with joy, for so great was the power of the alli- ance that even we did not feel ourselves safe from its inter- positions.

I remember the reception of the despatch from Mr. Rush as distinctly as if all the circum- stances had occurred yesterday. I well recollect the great satisfac- tion with which it was received by the cabinet. It came late in the year, not long before the meeting of congress. As was usual with Mr. Monroe upon great oc- casions, the papers were sent round to each member of the cabinet, so that each might be duly apprised of all the circum- stances, and be prepared to give his opinion. The cabinet met. It deliberated. There was long and careful consultation, and the re- sult was the declaration which I have just announced.

"All this has passed away. That very movement on the part of Eng- land, sustained by this declara- tion, gave a blow to the celebrated alliance from which it never re- covered. From that time forward it gradually decayed till it utterly perished. The late revolutions in Europe have put an end to all its work, and nothing remains of all that it ever did."

There is no doubt that the adoption of the Monroe policy was an exceedingly bold act. Yet because of that policy the nations of this hemisphere enjoyed nearly a century of security, a century without great wars, a century in which no great armaments were needed. To that policy which was established, as Calhoun points out, by British and American resis- tance to the designs of the allied despots of Europe the United States has owed the very iso- lation which so many of our current

Confirming Our Foreign Policy

WHETHER we like it or not, the inexorable rush of world affairs accompanying Adolf Hitler's onslaught against the British Isles is welding our foreign policy to the destiny of the British Empire. President Roosevelt's deal with Britain for air and naval bases in British western hemisphere possessions in return for 50 over-age destroyers merely confirms that the policy already is far past the talking stage.

Apparently the deal should work out to the best advantage of both parties. Britain secures additional small speedy fighting craft to convey commerce from all parts of the world and thus keep her commercial lifelines open. Larger and more powerful war vessels which had been used in convoy duty because of the shortage of destroyers can be shifted to active service against the German and Italian fleets.

On the other hand, this country will increase immensely the fighting effectiveness of its aerial and naval forces through establishment of new bases at all vital points in the western hemisphere. These bases will raise additional hazards to any attempt to attack the new world. Naval and army experts moreover, have approved the transaction.

Britain's assurance that the fleet never will be surrendered to Hitler, come what may, provides a comforting thought, although there still remains the danger that the tragedy of France will be repeated and our former destroyers will go along with the naval booty. Apparently we have to take that chance. The assurance, how- ever, is an admission that Britain has weighed the possibility of defeat and is prepared to continue the war with her fleet based on new world points.

Undoubtedly the Nazis will point to the deal as a warlike act although it represents no new change in a policy which previously had allowed transfer of U S warplanes. However, it should be apparent by this time that we need not concern ourselves with what the Nazis think of us, inasmuch as their foreign policy as exhibited in the cases of Norway, Denmark and other coun- tries is not dictated by considerations of friend- ship but rather by what they deem expedient.

Italian Optimism Fades

ITALIAN predictions of two more years of war point to a waning of Italian confidence in German invincibility and perhaps indicate that all may not be well south of the Brenner pass—and to the north as well. It must be remembered that Benito Mussolini entered the war when France was tottering and obviously with the fear that he might be left out of the booty should a general peace be made. It looked like a short and merry campaign.

Now, however, the British defense has stiff- ened and Adolf Hitler still hasn't crossed the channel. The African campaign has netted only tracts of sand and cactus and John Bull still rules the Mediterranean. But the toll of men and treasure continues and the Italian people must be made to understand that now all no longer is lovely and they must become resigned to a long and arduous campaign.

Hitler and his partner have staked all on the offensive theory of the blitzkrieg. They had pre- dicted easy victory. To confess after a year of war that the expected victory is still two years away might be a confession that the advance has been checked.

A Solution to the Problem

DECISION of the house military affairs com- mittee to approve a plan to allow the gov- ernment to take over, on a rental basis, indus- trial plants producing defense materials, seems a sensible way out of the current "wealth con- scription" entanglement.

The plan, offered as an amendment to the Burke-Wadsworth bill passed by the senate, would obviate many of the undesirable features of the senate plan which allows the government to condemn and take over the plants when an agreement cannot be reached on terms of pro- duction. The rental plan would enable the nation to go ahead full speed on defense work regard- less of any misunderstanding which might arise between government officials and independent business men.

Amid the confusion and debate over "wealth conscription" it is well to note that in a project of the magnitude of the defense program many honest misunderstandings may arise regardless of how well-intentioned all parties may be. Therefore, it is better to settle these disputes with a minimum of dislocation of economic processes. Under the house bill plants would be returned to their owners at the conclusion of the emergency. They would be recompensed for the use of their factories and the government would not be saddled with a lot of unnecessary war materials plants.

"Slide Rule" Soldiers

Engineers Keep Army Moving, Signals Find Out Where.

This is one of a series of ar- ticles prepared by the National Defense Advisory Commission to be published in The Star to give its readers a complete picture of the national preparedness pro- gram.

THE Engineer Corps and the Signal Corps have special duties in keeping our army going places and in touch with head- quarters. But they still are combat arms. This means that if they have to they can throw down their slide rules and their tele- phone instruments and trot out to show the infantry how to throw lead at an enemy.

The corps of engineers is the arm that furnishes technical engi- neering skill to the army. It gets its practice in peacetime by tam- ing rivers, building dams, and other engineering structure. If there is any kind of a dirty ad- ministrative job that needs doing we usually find an army engi- neer assigned to get it done, for getting things done is the breath of life to an engineer. All you have to do is tell an engineer it can't be done. He will then reach in his back pocket, pull out a slide rule, and by the time you have proved it can't be done, he has gone and finished it.

Functions of Engineers

A little problem in river bridg- ing is just meat. They have whole warehouses full of folding bridges. Just tell them the size river, and they trot out some folding boats and steel sections, a few boards, and the army is on its way again, tanks, guns, and all. They dig tunnels, build buildings, move mountains, put roads where they ought to be, run railways, whip up power and light systems, fur- nish water, build defense systems. In fact, they are a very handy organization to have around. They can be nasty if someone asks them to, for they conduct military mining. That is, they build tunnels under where the enemy is sitting and blow up the whole works. They also blow up bridges, roads, and railroads when necessary to hinder the enemy. Their duties are simple. They make movement and supply of our own army easier, and make it just as tough as possible for the enemy.

Just now they are engaged in building up our defense systems, providing buildings and structures for the army, and adding to their supplies of materials and plant tools. Most of the requirements of the Engineer Corps can be met from civilian construction sup- plies, and the defense advisory commission is seeing that they get them when they need them. The engineers are also in charge of the camouflage, hiding our forces from the enemy by paint, branches of trees, or anything else that is handy.

The Signal Corps doesn't tell the army what to do, but they fix it so the army knows what it is doing, which is just as im- portant. When the general wants a little something warlike done, that news has to get to the boys up in front who have the doing in hand—and the orders have to get there right side up, accu- rate, and on time.

There is the story about Rurik the Red coming south across the Baltic Sea back in the ninth cen- tury, with a fleet of 10,000 ships to whole the far out of the tribes on the southern shore. Well, it appears that Rurik didn't have telephone, telegraph, radio, mo- torcycles, airplanes, and homing pigeons such as our Signal Corps has today. One unit didn't know what the next was up to. The tribes on shore just slaughtered the men as they came ashore boat by boat. That was a lesson in communications.

Our Signal Corps has all those methods of communication, in- cluding a few more that they have up their sleeves but don't say much about. On the slide, it takes care of the weather, photo- graphs and moving pictures for training purposes. It also eaves- drops on the enemy communica- tions and picks up some mighty interesting information in the process.

It Can Fight Too

Like the engineers, when its duties of keeping communications open carry it close to the front lines, the Signal Corps takes time off from its other activities to do a little straight shooting. Before new commercial products and inventions can be adapted to military communications, a con- siderable modification or a com- plete redesign is usually neces- sary. Then, means of getting the redesigned equipment manufac- tured must be set up by the as- sistant secretary of war. The factories capable of producing this equipment are selected, and the national defense advisory com- mission sees to it that the equip- ment is produced. This is being done.

The Signal Corps also operates its own fixed radio network throughout the United States and keeps in touch with the whole army—both here and overseas. In addition, the army has organized some 1,200 of the 50,000 licensed radio operators in this country into a network that can augment the official facilities.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Reaction from the exciting fact few days sets in and Madge reaches a mental low

I COULD find no answer to my question as again, and again I feverishly went over that tense dramatic moment in Dicky's life and mine. At the time it had seemed a beautiful, self-abnegating gesture to refuse to listen to his confession—his confused manner had made me believe it would be that—but if the consequence of my decision was to be a fester such as I had just found in my soul, perhaps it would have been better to have permitted him to tell me everything that had happened.

My memory prodded my conscience with the reminder that Philip Veritzen was even now on his way to the farmhouse, and that, even though my father had decreed that he was to "take pot-luck" with the rest of us, yet, as hostess I ought to make some provision for the comfort of Mary's sybaritic father-in-law.

But I found that I could get no response to that problem from my tired brain and nerves, yet I realized that probing the wound in my heart was getting me nowhere, and with a feeling that action of any kind was preferable to thought, I went on down the stairs to the lower floor.

Katherine was alone in the library when I entered it, and her eyebrows quirked humorously at me, as, after a hesitant moment in the doorway, I walked in.

"Lil's in the kitchen," she said, answering the questioning look which I sent around the room. "She's making the pretense of helping Katie get dinner, and I fancy she's lending a hand at that."

"Oh!" I ejaculated comprehendingly. "Exactly," Katherine said. "We gathered that you didn't particularly care to have her 'doo-doo-ting' from your colloquy with old Phil."

I smiled at her gratefully. "You 'gathered' correctly," I told her, and then I sat down suddenly in the nearest chair, with the feeling that Philip Veritzen's projected advent into the household was, in Katie's parlance, "shoot too mooch."

It was really a slump of my body into the chair that I involuntarily staged, and through the lethargy that invested me, I saw that Katherine's keen eyes were looking at me searchingly.

Her scrutiny lasted but the merest fraction of a second. Then she rose abruptly, and walking over to me, tapped me lightly on the shoulder.

"Promise me you'll stay put for two minutes," she said. "I won't be longer than that."

A Delegation of Two
"Cross my heart; hope to die; honest injun!" I returned, forcing a wintry smile to my lips, for, indeed, I asked nothing more of life at that moment than the opportunity to sit motionless with my mind a blank. I could not even summon energy enough to wonder where she had gone, or why she had made so sudden a departure.

She was back in the time she had named, and she did not come alone. Lillian was beside her, and the sight of my two friends together and with something purposeful in their faces, shattered my lethargy and excited my curiosity.

That they were in the room because of me was obvious, but a glance at Katherine's hands told me that she had brought no portion of any kind with her, and I knew that she was not worrying over my physical condition. Her first words, however, told me that she and Lillian were turning themselves into a first aid unit for the appeasement of my mental worries, realizing that it was my spirit, not my body which needed succor.

Gradale Sorority Launches Season with Y Meeting

ONE of the first groups to open the 1940-41 season is the Alpha Chapter of Gradale sorority, which met last evening at the Y. M. C. A. Miss Dorothy Pace, who will serve as president this year, presided.

Plans were made to attend the state convention at Portsmouth Oct. 5 and 6. Following the business session Miss Eleanor Epley, program chairman, presided for a program which included a talk on "Gradale as a Service Club," by Robert Hicks, boys' work secretary at the Y.

SPEAKER DISCUSSES PROPHECY IN BIBLE

The ninth chapter of the Book of Daniel and its prophecy of the 480 years marked off for special dealing with the Jewish nation was discussed by Dr. A. I. Brown of Vancouver, B. C., at the Young People's Fellowship club Bible conference last night at the Chautauque pavilion.

We discovered in this most amazing prophecy that from the date of the permission given by King Artaxerxes to Nehemiah as mentioned in the second chapter of the Book of Nehemiah, down to the coming of the Messianic Prince there would elapse a period of 483 years, or 69 weeks of years," he said. "The prophetic year has 360 days and that means 173,880 days. The date of the Artaxerxes announcement was March 14, 445 B. C., and the date of the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem was April 6, 32 A. D. When this is calculated we find that He rode into the city on the 173,880th day. Could anything more clearly prove the divine origin of the Bible than that?"

Tonight at 8 Dr. Brown will speak on "Great Creation Wonders of Genesis in the Light of Modern Science."

CARDENAS PREPARES TO CHECK UPRISING

Revolt Reported Near by Almazan Followers.

By The Associated Press
MEXICO CITY, Sept. 3.—The administration of President Cardenas took extraordinary precautions today to forestall a possible armed attempt to seize power which a leader of General Juan Almazan's party declared might begin "within the next 10 hours or two days."

The government patrolled highways, watched airports and kept all trains under surveillance to check on movements of Almazan's followers, while responsible sources reported troop reinforcements were being moved to northern Mexico, regarded as an Almazan stronghold.

Graciano Sanchez, head of the national concentration of 3,000,000 peasants, announced 80,000 trained members were ready to take up their rifles in support of the administration, which backed General Manuel Avila Camacho against Almazan in the disputed and bloody July presidential election.

Ansel Trechuelo, executive of Almazan's party, made the prediction of an early outbreak of revolt just before he left Mexico City for an undisclosed destination in northern Mexico shortly after midnight.

Declaring plans were so advanced that publicity would make no difference "as the government is unable to stop us," Trechuelo asserted 500 key directors of the revolt left the capital secretly during the night for prearranged meeting places.

There, he said, they would start uprisings and proclaim their allegiance to the "legal" government of Almazan and his "congress" which yesterday proclaimed Almazan president-elect.

The office of Avila Camacho said last night the chamber of deputies on Sept. 12 would declare him elected.

"CAVEMAN" TACTICS FAIL

Ohioan Gets Girl In Spite of Foe's Objection.

By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 3.—Earl Higdon of Chicago was the "caveman" but Sgt. William Koester Jr., of the Ohio national guard, got the girl.

Koester and Coralene Hickman, 22, were married last night, a few hours after she announced she was going to marry Higdon because he stole her wedding gown "and that assured me he really cared."

The Chicagoan rushed past Miss Hickman's landlady yesterday, snatched the gown and said she was Koester's only "lover my dead body."

Then Koester talked to Miss Hickman at length, reminding her they already had a marriage license. As a woman will, she changed her mind again.

Higdon, admitting defeat, returned the dress in time for the ceremony.

VINCENT ASTOR'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE IN WEST

By The Associated Press
CODY, Wyo., Sept. 3.—Vincent Astor, head of one of America's wealthiest families, has been divorced by Mrs. Helen Dinsmore Astor, his wife for 26 years.

Mrs. Astor was granted a divorce on the grounds of mental cruelty after a brief hearing yesterday before District Judge Percy W. Metz.

A secret property settlement between Astor, who inherited a $15,000,000 fortune, and his wife was arranged out of court.

The Astors, married April 20, 1914, have no children.

Astor is a great-grandson of John Jacob Astor, whose fur-trading business founded the family fortune. A personal friend of President Roosevelt, he has been active in movements to eliminate slums and replace them with modern dwellings.

LEAGUE REPORTS SAVING IN FRANKLIN COUNTY

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—Franklin county's new purchasing department effected savings in excess of $30,000 during its first six months of operations, the Citizens Tax League of Ohio reported today.

The league's audit showed $300,000 spent during the first half of this year for commodities which cost $310,000 during the corresponding 1939 period when prices were lower.

The league, which recommended the new department, said better savings could be obtained through increased efficiency and wise planning.

including Liverpool, Bristol and Hull.

An account of sea warfare said the German navy has sunk five British destroyers in recent days, including three said to have been of modern type—the Esk, Ivanhoe and Express.

The 18 German civilians were killed when a bomb dropped on workers' quarters while the victims were outside a shelter, the high command reported.

Army Warehouse Hit

In the Berlin raid, bombs damaged an electrical plant and warehouse where army equipment was stored.

A policeman was killed when a bomb dropped in the famous Tiergarten park in Berlin, and another man was killed by a bomb which damaged apartment houses in a community south of the city.

Authorized sources declared only two British planes penetrated the Berlin defenses, and one of these was shot down outside the city.

Most of the British raiders which entered Germany were turned back for the second successive night by anti-aircraft fire and Nazi chaser planes, they said.

These sources asserted the British succeeded, however, in dropping incendiary bombs on various parts of the Reich.

They said several persons were injured by a British attack on the noted health resort of Kissingen, in Bavaria.

Adolf Hitler's Sportpalast address yesterday in which he reiterated his determination to crush Britain and threatened to "erase" English cities to avenge the British night raids absorbed attention of all Germans.

SIX AMERICANS TAKEN FROM SHIP BY GERMANS

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Capture of six Americans on a steamship seized by German warships was reported today in a broadcast by Edwin Hartich, CBS correspondent in Berlin, quoting the newspaper, Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

Hartich said the Berlin newspaper related the Americans were taken from the steamship Atlantic enroute to South Africa.

They were first taken to a French port, he said, and then "given transportation" to Spain. No details were given as to whether the six were ultimately released.

CBS studio officials here gave the following names of the six, adding that there was no confirmation of the spelling and no addresses:

Mr. and Mrs. O. Yoder, F. A. Schmallenberg, Jesse M. Nicholson, Frank J. and Zola C. Kuntzer.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—Secretary of State George Nefner today received a telegraphed request from the Dies committee, an American committee for photographic copies of petition to qualify Communist candidates for Ohio's November election.

Nefner said the request was signed by Robert E. Stripling, secretary of the congressional committee.

Nefner said he would suggest to Stripling that he wait until county election boards had checked the petitions before obtaining the copies. The petitions will be sent to county boards tomorrow, Nefner indicated.

Union Objects to Delaware Pupils Using Projectors

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, Sept. 3.—Student operators of motion picture projectors at Willis High school were objected to yesterday by a representative of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Operators of the United States and Canada in a conference with Supt. D. R. Smith and Principal Ervin F. Carlisle.

The representative, R. W. Greer of Columbus, discussed placing a member of his association in complete charge of the operation of the motion picture projectors at the high school. He told the officials that this plan is being carried on in Columbus schools where movies are shown.

At Willis High students are given a year's training before they are given the responsibility of operating the machines, officials said. Any action on the union representative's plan will be taken at the next meeting of the city board of education.

THREE BOYS CAPTURED AS SHOTS END FLIGHT

By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, Sept. 3.—A shot-punctuated 80-mile-an-hour chase through the heart of suburban Silverton and Norwood ended today in the capture of three fugitives from the boys' industrial school at Lancaster, O.

Charles Kilgore, night marshal of Silverton, reported the recovery of an automobile taken by the trio in Circleville.

The three registered as James Harness, 17, of Cincinnati; Willard Abbott, 18, of Albion, Pa.; and Ed Johnson, 14, of Toledo.

The capture followed a state highway patrol broadcast-description of the stolen car.

Kilgore said he fired at the youths four times during the chase which came to an abrupt end when their car became disabled.

CHILD'S BODY FOUND

By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 3.—An all-night search for missing two-year-old Rose Marie Brooks ended today with the finding of her body in industrial Millcreek. Police said the child, last seen about 4:30 p. m. Wednesday playing near her home, either fell into the creek after crossing fields that separate it from the street or dropped from a rail trestle that crosses the stream.

across the channel. One British barrage balloon was shot down.

German day raiders also were over the industrial Midlands and the southwest, where four persons were injured in a municipal hospital during a night attack.

The night raiders appeared in many areas of England, including London, where one of the greatest anti-aircraft barrages of the war met a few planes which succeeded in passing the outer defenses and dropping bombs.

Little damage was reported, however.

Eight-Hour Attack

A southwest coast area underwent its most intensive attack of the war with eight hours of continuous bombing and anti-aircraft fire before daybreak.

In general, however, Adolf Hitler's new threat of retaliation for night RAF attacks on Germany failed to bring any marked increase in night raiding.

The nation looked to Prime Minister Winston Churchill to reply today to Hitler's warning in a speech to the house of commons expected to begin about 4 p. m. (10 a. m. EST).

Parliament which started its vacation Aug. 22, was called for a one-day session to hear the prime minister's report on the air war and the deal for 50 over-age United States destroyers.

Rural areas of three southwest counties were blanketed by the eight-hour raid. A church and police station were reported damaged, and a stick of bombs fell near a station and railway line but service was not interrupted.

WILLKIE CALLS ON G. O. P. FOR AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN

By The Associated Press
RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 3.—Exactly two months before the presidential election, Wendell L. Willkie called on Republican leaders from 22 states today to "get an aggressive, organized campaign under full steam."

He invited nearly 100 national committeemen, committeewomen and state chairmen to discuss organizational problems with him over heaping plates of fried chicken, cream gravy and mashed potatoes—his favorite menu.

The meeting was described in advance by the Republican presidential nominee as the largest of its kind planned for this year.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 3.—Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr, National Committeeman David S. Ingalls and National Committeewoman Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown of Dayton, are in Rushville, Ind., today conferring with Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate.

Mrs. Brown and Schorr will return to Columbus for a meeting tomorrow of the state central and executive committees for officially approving Wednesday, Sept. 18, as the date for the state convention.

Relief Offices of City and County Win Praise in Report of Examiner

No Findings for 1939 Listed; Expenditures Placed at $98,693 for Aid to Poor.

Commenting favorably on the efficient manner in which relief is administered in Marion city and county, a state examiner's report of the relief administration was released today listing expenditures totaling $98,693.83 for last year.

One unusual feature of the report, which covers the entire year of 1939, is that no findings were made for recovery of illegal receipts or disbursements of relief funds despite the fact that the amount expended during the year was exceptionally large.

James W. Rein, state relief examiner who audited the administration's records and prepared the report, praises highly the manner in which relief records are kept here and comments in particular on the work of Frank S. Burns, director of both the city and county relief areas.

"Under his efficient management of these two relief areas, relief expenditures have been kept to a minimum and the operation of these two offices is well deserving of comment."

In explaining that no findings were made against relief officials, Mr. Rein stated: "All relief cases were carefully investigated before being accepted on the relief rolls and all rules and regulations governing relief grants and expenditures of relief funds were strictly complied with, thus eliminating the necessity for any findings."

Included in the total relief 1939 cost of $98,693.88 was an expenditure of $71,870.95 for direct and relief work orders and medical attention for relief clients; $7,748.84 for administrative costs; $5,897.37 for sponsorship of WPA projects and other relief costs amounting to $13,058.72. Direct relief costs amounted to $42,600.68, expenditures for work relief totaled $27,658.16 and the cost of medical relief amounted to $1,611.88.

The peak of the relief load in the city and county was reached during October when 2,319 individuals benefited from relief money. This included 487 families and 209 single persons in Marion city and 54 families and eight single persons in the rural sections of the county. The lowest relief load was in May when only 1,382 received relief benefits. This number was represented in 325 cases including 314 family groups and 211 individuals.

ITALIANS REPORT AIR, SEA BATTLES

Attacks on British Over Wide Area Revealed.

By The Associated Press
ROME, Sept. 3.—A series of furious naval and air engagements with British forces in which Italian max (motor torpedo boats) participated "successfully" was reported in Africa and the Mediterranean by the Italian high command today.

It told of British air and naval bombardments of Italian bases in the Dodecanese Islands off the coast of Turkey, and Italian attacks on three British naval and merchant ship formations.

Six British naval ships, including two cruisers, were damaged by aerial bombs in two of these actions, the high command said, and 17 British planes destroyed in this and other combat.

In addition an Italian torpedo boat "successfully attacked" a British cruiser and two destroyers, the Italian communiqué said, and Italian planes "seriously hit" a British merchant ship.

Italian losses were listed as one max boat and four planes.

The action ranged from off the coast of Algeria in the western Mediterranean, through the Aegean to the Red sea.

22 ESCAPED CONVICTS NOW CAUGHT OR DEAD

By The Associated Press
COLUMBIA, La., Sept. 3.—Twenty-two of 38 convicts who escaped from the Arkansas prison farm Monday had been recaptured or killed today but scattered groups of the felons continued to spread terror in Arkansas and Louisiana.

This section, where the most sensational forays occurred, breathed easier today after the rescue, unharmed, of two girls and a boy held as hostages for almost 48 hours by a band of convicts now either dead or captured.

Five or six of the 14 convicts still at large were reported early today to be surrounded near Watson, Ark., while officers at Natchez, Miss., hunted dense underbrush near there for another.

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeanne Bowman

YESTERDAY. The Cabrillos are furious at Constance's plan to keep the ranch. Pedro writes, asking for her decision.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
All's Fair

CONSTANCE had carried the letter to her window to read. Now she looked out. Rain had followed the snow and now, with lowering clouds dripping with rain, half snow, it was as miserable underfoot as it was overhead. Constance thought she had never seen a more beautiful day.

She returned to her desk, pulled it before the hearth, snapped on a low light and started composing the reply, her cheeks as scarlet as the velvet robe she wore.

And then she wrote, swiftly. Dear Pedro,—

Mr. Raskthorne will write the formal decision to Judge Franck, but I would like you to know why I reached my decision.

Really, I have never had to reach one. At no time have I, personally, wanted to sell the ranch. Despite your belief that the Cabrillos have thought of it only as a means of income, this has not been true of me, or perhaps, as Meg says, I am not a Cabrillo.

To me, the ranch has always been a symbol of home. I have worked for the day when I could return there to live.

Your offer forced me to return for a visit, and that visit made me know I could not part with it without first trying to save it for myself.

Perhaps it is wrong for me to follow your plan to convert the place into a dairy farm, however the plan is not original, and when you are fighting for something you love, all's fair.

I know your father's contract allows him to remain as manager, as long as the property remains in the hands of the Cabrillos. I am bringing in a dairy expert. If he and you, care to remain under these circumstances, and—

Constance stopped to nibble the end of her pen.

Why couldn't she think of El Cabrillo without the Taylors there? Why couldn't she divorce them from the ranch; it was the ranch she loved. Were they as much a part of the ranch as the house and the willow trees, and the hills and the ocean?

They loved it. That justified her next words. She was confident it was the only reason she wrote them.

"—and I hope you will find it convenient to stay, at least during the three years I am taking for my experiment.

I will arrive, on New Year's day. May I now hear whether or not you will remain, at your earliest convenience?"

Michael, P S Pedro A Cabrillo raised the money Or was it a Mahoney? She waited anxiously for the reply. She watched the city burrow into the snow for the winter. She made trips with John, and then one evening, she returned to find a letter awaiting her.

Peter, Senior, had written it. She opened it before John.

"Ringside Seat"

Constance laughed as she read Peter Taylor's letter. She could imagine Meg standing around, wondering if Peter's pen would gouge through the paper and scratch the desk, could imagine Pedro, standing by chuckling, dark eyes sardonic.

"—of all the fool young women you are the prize," he wrote. "A snowball in hoes has a better chance of enduring than you have in a dairy farm."

And the concluding paragraph. John Raskthorne saw nothing humorous about it, but Constance laughed, hysterically.

"—you bet we're staying. We have ringside seats at the biggest stock show the west has ever put on—"

John paced up and down, then stopped before Constance. "Chits, there's something queer about their staying on. I don't like it. No business men, and I have great respect for the business ability of gentlemen, with the capital these fellows have, would take three years out of their lives for the pleasure of watching a girl make a failure of the place they wanted. Connie, what is this son of Taylor's like?"

"Oh, my goodness," gasped Constance. "Why, he's, well, he's. I don't know how to describe him, John, he's sort of insolent and well, well we fought everytime we met," she hastened to say. "He doesn't like Cabrillos," she explained. "He thinks them completely worthless."

John resumed his pacing and again stopped before Constance. "The Taylors are remaining for one of two reasons," he stated. "Either this young Taylor hopes to marry El Cabrillo or else they will work against you, undercover."

Constance reached for a cigarette and for once John did not spring to light it for her. She was glad. The silly little white cylinder was trembling. Either reason was disconcerting. One more than another. "Idiot," she charged herself.

"As the young Taylor can't marry El Cabrillo, unless Donna should succumb, and I can't imagine Donna falling for a vaquero, Constance began, "he must mean to work... undercover. However, as I am hiring the dairyman and the employees have been with the Cabrillos since time began, I don't intend worrying about their making any headway."

John drew an ottoman close. "I'm jealous of that Taylor," he confided, half ruefully. "He'll be there seeing you every day. Constance, how about taking me on as your business manager?"

"Dollar-a-year man?" inquired Constance. "But don't be foolish. John, there's no reason for my seeing Taylor every day, or even every week. And what if I should?" she added. "Look, here's a letter from the State Agricultural college, must be Pederson's credentials. Pederson is the Dane Mrs. MacKelvey believes in so firmly."

Constance tried several times to interest the family in the ranch. "Imagine a man graduating from a cow-college," disparaged Donna. "What good are these references? Who cares if he's had ten years of practical husbandry since then? Anyone who could stand to be around a cow could run a dairy."

PENNEY'S

J C PENNEY COMPANY, Inc.

Constance gave up. She was leaving for the west, two days before Christmas. There would be nothing merry or peaceful among the Cabrillos if she remained.

She had one last chore. She must tell her story. Fortunately the reporter had imagination into his account he wove the history of Michael Mahoney, as well as the Cabrillos, and he gave full credit for the present condition of the ranch to the Taylors, who had carried on despite changing conditions.

"That," stated John, striking the paper as he drove with Constance to her west-bound train, "will put a final check on Cabrillo credit. No man, aside from the one who loves you, will believe you can make good against such odds."

Constance settled into her compartment, Lamson bringing evidence of John Raskthorne's affection with him Candy, flowers, magazines and a number of books on dairy farming.

She had received her Christmas gift from him, a fleece-lined coat of softest leather, a leather bound wristwatch, laced boots of softest doeskin, and, riding in the baggage car, a handsome stock saddle.

Lamson, the only family representative, gave her an agitated farewell. "Be careful of the horses, Miss Conchita. I wish you would wait until I could join you."

"You can join me anytime you're ready," Constance assured him. "Someone has to drive my car out in the spring."

Lamson left and she turned to John. How could she think of him as a sweetheart, when he was father, mother and brother to her? He'd thought of the things Nadine should have remembered. He'd stood by her through her troubles, as Don should have stood. Now he was letting her go on, into a new world, without trying to hold her, letting her try out her wings, as a father would. And he'd be there, in the background, waiting, if the wings weren't strong enough.

"John, you're blinding me to you with your kindness," she whispered into his shoulder, and leaned there a moment.

And then the train was moving out and she was alone. Lights slid past her window, colored lights, tiny trees glittering in shack windows along the railroad, snow hiding the ugliness of the mean places which held them.

Once, after she had watching her light and lay watching the landscape, a sleigh waited at a crossing, a sleigh filled with people old and young, a family, all together, going somewhere to celebrate the holiday.

Constance thought of her mother's farewell, a quick, light, perfumed kiss. "I hope you're not making a mistake, dear."

Don and Donna had left for a cocktail party without offering a farewell.

Constance had watched the glittering parade, seeing herself in severe black tailored clothes. Now she thought, bitterly, "The runt of the litter, the queer cross-breeds the throwback!"

Morning came with the snow falling thick, blurring the landscape and casting an unearthly glow in the compartment. The diner was filled with families going home for Christmas; with commercial men, hurrying home for one day with their families, even the waiters were filled with the joy of the holidays.

Constance retreated from the happy people. She rang for a table and buried her thoughts in the future.

Here were the letters pertaining to transactions. She'd read them through, every one of them, but later, now she would study dairying. She read Holsterns, Jerseys, Guernseys, Shorthorns, Herefords, Galloways, Durhams and Devons marched across the pages of the books. Feed mash, tillage, housing marketing, now crammed into her mind.

What would Michael Mahoney have thought of his throwback, she wondered once. She closed the books and leaned back assured. She had done exactly what Michael would have done under these circumstances.

"I can't lose," she cried aloud. "I can't, it isn't in the cards, it's just history repeating itself."

Grandson of Famed Feudist Enlists

"I'm a fightin' man from a fightin' clan, but from now on I'll do my battlin' in the U. S. army," said Tennis S. Hatfield, Jr., when he enlisted last week at Charleston, W. Va.

This 18-year-old grandson of the late "Devil Anse" Hatfield, leader of West Virginia's famous feuding clan of the "way back there in the days of long barbed filles and careless killings" is now a soldier en route to service in Panama.

Young Hatfield stated that he is not interested in the old feud between members of his family and the McCoy's. "I just want to do my part now that this country needs men to build its national defense. The army is great and I recommend it to any boy who is looking for a good job at good pay," he said.

Books of Waldo Native Added to Ohioana Library

A complete collection of the books written by Dr. E. G. Conklin, native of Waldo and eminent scientist, has been added to the Martha Kinney Cooper Ohioana Library in Columbus through the efforts of the Marion county Ohioana Library committee, it was announced today.

Dr. Conklin, now living at Princeton, N. J., is a professor emeritus of Princeton university. Last year Time magazine used his picture on a cover and devoted considerable space to a discussion of his prominence in the field of science.

Letters explaining the purpose of the Ohioana library, to gather in one place the writings of all native-born Ohio authors, were sent to Dr. Conklin with a request that he present the library with a collection of his writings. Last week the books were received at Columbus, according to word received by Miss Pansy K. Rauhauser of 819 Linden place, chairman of the Marion county committee and state secretary of the Ohioana Library committee.

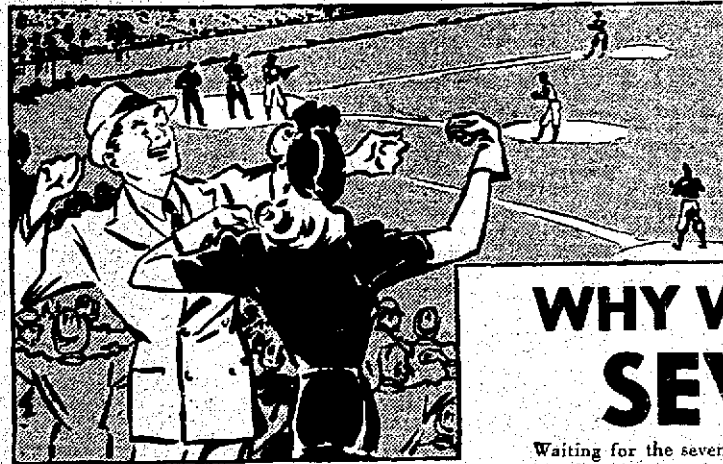

Marion city and county residents who wish to become patrons of the library, may secure information from Miss Rauhauser. Lieut. R. F. Melby Named To Assist in Drive.

Second Lieut. Robert F. Melby of Co. D, 168th Infantry, Ohio national guard of Marion, is among National Guard officers in the state who have been asked to assist in the enlisting of flying cadets in the U. S. army.

Col. S. G. Tisbott, adjutant general, at Fort Hayes in Columbus has written asking that Mr. Melby join guardsmen in the Fifth Corps Area in obtaining suitable applicants for flying training.

In order to become a flying cadet a young man must be between the ages of 20 and 27, unmarried, in excellent health and must have had two years of college education or take an educational examination to prove that he has had the equivalent of two years, according to the communication from Colonel Tisbott.

Applicants should go to the nearest regular army recruiting office and fill out an application, which must be accompanied by a birth certificate, a certificate from a college registrar showing that he has had two years of college education, and three letters testifying to his moral character. If the application is acted upon favorably the applicant is given a rigid physical examination before a flying cadet examining board. If he passes the examination and his educational and moral qualifications are sufficient, he is enrolled as a flying cadet, given flying training for nine months under regular army air corps instructors in army planes, his clothing, lodging, food and $75 a month. If he completes the course he gets his wings and becomes a Reserve Air Corps officer and is eligible for active duty at $205.50 a month, $40 a month extra if government quarters are not furnished to the communication received by Mr. Melby one of the country's greatest needs for national defense is to train qualified young men to pilot military planes.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, Sept. 6
AN INTERESTING, exciting and productive day, with much real progress toward high goals, according to the lunar and mutual aspects. Large issues are at stake and will be engineered with energy, initiative, determination, hard work and perseverance. New as well as old enterprises should respond to such tactics, under the high potencies of planetary impetus. Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a productive, progressive and prosperous year, with much accomplished in a big way, by maintaining a sane and even course of action. The forces and faculties will be keyed to bold initiative, but since there are indications of counter currents it is recommended that reserves of resolution, patience, determination and hard work be drawn on. A child born on this day will be splendidly endowed with energy and faculties to assure it a more than ordinary success in a professional, literary, scientific career, where foresight and brilliant intellect count.

accusing him of violating the federal Hatch act, sought Gov. Bricker's advice before taking further action.

Davey termed the accusation "pure bunk" and officials of the division of aid for the aged questioned the wisdom of pressing the charge. One official expressed fear that the federal social security board, which provides half the money for the pensioners, might allege mismanagement and withhold further contributions.

The board, criticizing Davey's activities among the pensioners when he was governor in 1938, withheld $1,300,000, and Ohio never got the money.

Sherwood informed the social security board that Davey, in his 1940 campaign as the Democratic nominee, violated the Hatch act by obtaining an "up-to-date" list of the old age pensioners and promising to seek a guaranteed monthly income of $40 for them if elected.

The board replied that any evidence of violations should be submitted to the department of justice.

Tom McCaw, chief of the aid for aged division, said the Hatch act prohibited the use of a list of federal relief recipients for political purposes. He interpreted the pensioners as beneficiaries of federal aid.

McCaw told the board that the list could have been obtained only from two sources: His division or the state auditor's office, which writes the pensioners' checks.

"It certainly did not come from my office," he said. Deputy Auditor Norman Beck asserted "nor from my office, so far as I know."

Davey, who recently was endorsed by members of the Ohio Society of Old Age Pensioners from 44 counties, declared the Hatch act accusation was a "poorly-made scarecrow" "pure bunk as it relates to me."

FARMERS AT O. S. U. SEEK NEW TRICKS

300 Gather To Learn of New Developments.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 5.—More than 300 farmers came to Ohio State university farms today to learn what new and useful information on soils, crops and animal husbandry has been gleaned from recent state experiments.

Alfalfa, soybeans and hybrid corn were the principal subjects, with hybrid corn coming in for another session at the farms tomorrow when about 350 producers and distributors will inspect the corn acreage.

Visitors were offered proof that a 40 per cent higher meadow yield is obtainable by replacing a third of clover seeding by alfalfa. R. D. Lewis of the agronomy department, who described the alfalfa experiments, said that sedan grass and alfalfa had weathered summer drought well.

Agronomist D. R. Dodd showed a number of new and promising varieties of soybeans; and machinery used in soybean production was displayed and discussed by G. W. McCuen, agricultural engineering chairman.

Forty new dent corn hybrids whose seed will be marketed next spring for the first time were discussed by H. H. Stringfield and J. B. Park and compared with standard hybrids and varieties.
